

The media holds tremendous power in our country, influencing the way we shop, vote, and even think. One corporation holding a monopoly over the airwaves is an extremely dangerous situation, and contradicts the longstanding American tradition of competition and free choice.